

Kindermusik offers programs that fit the developmental stages of children. A rich assortment of musical activities is designed to promote language development, symbolic thinking, coordination, and social interactions while cultivating the child's imagination. Whether listening, moving, vocalizing, enjoying an ensemble, playing an instrument, creating or reading music, the focus is on process, not performance. Home activities reinforce each lesson using carefully designed materials based on developmental research. For more detailed information on Kindermusik International, see the back panel.

The sequence of each lesson is carefully planned to help the child move from the security of being with the adult to activities that invite him or her to show more independence.
