Baptist churches hold the tradition of two ordained offices in the church: pastors and deacons. Based on Acts 6:1-7, the role of deacons is to extend the shepherding care beyond the reach of the ministry staff, and to protect the unity of the church. It's an important role.

Roughly two dozen men labor as deacons in FBC today (plus another handful of emeritus deacons). They greet and encourage us on Sunday mornings, lead in committees and ministry teams, visit members and prospects, and cook a really good men's breakfast once a month. They pray and train to stay straight with God so they can help us all with the same battle. You can pray for them—for their physical and spiritual health, for their wisdom and courage, for their growth in Christlikeness, for their families—all with thankfulness for them.

We recently gathered nominations from FBC members for adding new deacons. A small group of the current deacons have the task of screening the nominees for the right combination of qualifications and willingness to serve. The resulting list of final nominees will come to the church for election at a later date. Please pray for this process, which we'll approach patiently and depending on God's Spirit.

Yours in Christ,
Bro. Rick

SYMPATHY AND LOVE TO:
The Family of Juverna Bogard at her death.
Bill & Jean King and Family in the death of his father, William W King Sr.

I just want to thank our Church for hosting the Lampasas Baptist Association Music Festival. Choirs from our sister churches came together for an evening of praise. Our own choir provided the meal afterwards of Pinto Beans and Cornbread along with Marguerite Ramsey's cucumber salad, which is always a winner! We fed around 130 people. Thank you choir for your hard work in setting up, preparing, cooking, serving and cleaning up afterwards and thank you dear Marguerite Ramsey for making that huge bowl of cucumber salad.

Thank you to our Bible fellowship teachers who filled our eggs for the Easter egg hunt.

Just a reminder that June 18 will be our Youth Spaghetti luncheon and dessert auction fundraiser after the morning service. These funds will help support youth summer activities.

June 25 - 29 is Vacation Bible School. Sandra Mattson is the director and Jill Martin is the pre-school director. Please call the church office to volunteer.

Looking Forward (Philippians 3:13,14)

Bro. Robert
