It was founded in 2011 by a former UU-UNC executive director EDC provides scholarships to impoverished adolescent girls, most of whom are orphaned and residing in Manya Krobo district of Ghana, an area where there are no free high schools.

New Amsterdam Boys and Girls Choir

James Backmon, Director
P.O.B. 99
New York, NY 10029

Amsterdam Boys and Girls Choir was established in 1986. It performs songs to inspire and educate with focus on the history of the Civil Rights struggle and social justice. Members are drawn from one of the city's poorest neighborhoods of East Harlem. The organization seeks to stress the value of working together. It focuses on teaching leadership and other skills to aid the children to feel they can develop personal empowerment by bonding through singing in a group.

If American Knew

5694 Mission Center Road, Ste. 607-710
San Diego, CA 92108

If Americans Knew was founded by American freelance journalist Alison Weir who found in her own exploration that the US press often gives incomplete or biased accounts of what is actually happening, particularly, relative to the Palestine-Israeli conflict. IFK produces informational materials, assists in organizing public forums, prepares materials for distribution and provides speakers to hundreds of venues such as Harvard Law School, Stanford and Columbia Universities as well as to churches, libraries, and civic organizations. The aim is encourage open and honest discussion and provide citizens with more comprehensive information.
