

Weekend of August 28, 2010

To the STM Families --

What a great first week of school we have had! The students, new and old, seem to be settling in to their schedules, the students look wonderful in their green and white logo shirts with shirts neatly tucked in, and the new buildings are an incredible addition to our campus. We should all feel very proud of our school community.

The first school mass of the year was also held this morning. There is no gathering at our school that better demonstrates what is special about our school community than our Friday morning mass. To see our children worship together with parents, teachers, administrators, and guests is a truly special happening. As a reminder to STM parents, all parents, siblings, relatives, and friends are always invited to attend the Friday morning mass at 10:30 am. I hope to see you next Friday!

Have a great weekend!
