Columbia's D.Min. Program

This post-graduate program is designed for active church leaders who have completed the M.Div. degree and have at least three years of service in the church.

Completion of the 36-semester hour program typically requires four years of study with limited time in class. The supervised ministry practicum and final research project are completed in your place of ministry.

Advantages of Our Unique Program

- You complete four courses in Montreat, NC. Your three additional electives are completed in two-week intensive formats on the seminary campus in Decatur, GA.
- Your professors are committed to teaching graduate-level courses designed especially for D.Min. students
- For your research project, you receive individualized, specialized advisement from professors with expertise in your area of interest.
- Course options allow you to concentrate on areas of study that meet your needs.
- Scheduling is ideal for active church leaders who can use continuing education leave to complete an advanced degree.
- During your program of study, you have opportunities to learn with colleagues in ministry and to build friendships.

Columbia Theological Seminary is a fully accredited institution of the Presbyterian Church (USA), a community of theological inquiry and formation for ministry in the service of the ecumenical family of Christian churches. We are pleased to offer selected courses in the beautiful setting of Montreat Conference Center in western North Carolina.
