Blessings and Miracles!

Dear Subscriber,

As I compose this update, I am sitting at a desk in my writing room - actually an upstairs bedroom in my home that contains many of the items most precious to me. Here I sit surrounded by my collection of books and Bibles, family photos, memorabilia, and a few possessions that once belonged to my son, Stephen. Above my computer is a corkboard overflowing with photos, encouraging cards and letters, and favorite scripture verses - all poignant reminders of why I do what I do.

This room has become my sanctuary but one night it also served as the site of my deliverance. If I turn my chair slightly to the right I can see the very place where I fell to my knees five years and two months ago and begged a God I wasn't even sure existed to help me - to reveal Himself to me if He really cared about me. You know the story... He responded and I have never been the same!

This was the first of many blessings and miracles He has poured into my life over the past few years. Last Wednesday, He delivered another and it seems appropriate to share it with you from this very spot.

Three weeks ago, I received a request for a speaking DVD from the coordinator of the SC Women's Lifestyle Evangelism Conference. This event, sponsored by the SC Baptist Convention, is held each January over a three day period in three SC cities: Taylors, Myrtle Beach, and Columbia and is attended by thousands of women in each city. I was thrilled to be considered as a speaker for this event but also humbled to think God might entrust me with such a significant responsibility.

Over the next few weeks I prayed that God would search my heart and find me ready to share my story of His deliverance in

Quote to Ponder:

The place God calls you to is the place where your deep gladness and the world's deep hunger meet.

this venue. I prayed that He would find me to be a vessel that can be shaped and used for His glory alone and that many lives will be eternally changed as others witness His power revealed through my brokenness and restoration.

Last week, I learned that I have been selected to serve as a speaker for the SC Women's Lifestyle Evangelism Conference in January 2010! I will have the privilege of joining the SC Baptist Women's Evangelism team, popular author, speaker, and missionary Kim Hardy, and a not-yet-announced but very special internationally-recognized Bible teacher and award-winning author (look for an exciting future announcement!) to share God's love with women throughout the state of South Carolina.

Five years after feeling convinced my life was devoid of hope or meaning and that my loss was unsurvivable, God has opened the door for me to participate in this special event and proclaim His awesome power to transform our lives. What a blessing and honor it is to serve the one Living God who freely dispenses grace and second chances.

Do you know someone who could use a fresh start? Someone longing to have her heart saturated with an unlosable love or someone desperate for deliverance from an impossible situation? I hope you will join us and invite everyone you know to come with you. God is preparing an unforgettable experience for all of us!

Please join us in praying for this event. Also, continue to pray for my newest book to find favor with the editors who are considering it and for God to be revealed in the message I will deliver to the congregation of First Baptist Church of Hildebran, NC on May 3, 2009. Thank you for your love, prayers, and support!
