- Share information on the importance of Early Childhood with your employees. Develop a communication plan in your organization to educate employees on the importance of Early Childhood development.
- Arrange a presentation to a local business or civic group (e.g., Rotary).
- Be a part of a speaker's bureau.
- Be a part of a small team to plan a regional business leader network to learn more about these issues and develop a strategic plan.
- Receive the Partnership for America's Economic Success monthly e-mails for Business Leaders for Early Childhood, including new evidence, events, and champions.
- There is an immediate need for business people to lend their name specifically in support of policy changes to ensure home visiting funds are spent on effective programs. Check here if you are interested in this effort. You would be contacted for permission.
