New Sunday Morning Opportunities

Announcing a new gathering on Sunday mornings from 9:45-10:25 beginning on September 9. This group, called "Lectio Divina", will explore scripture in contemplation, prayer, and discussion. It is open to anyone seeking a small group to join for encouragement and the discovery of life-applicable spiritual insights that arise from attentive meditation on the words of scripture. Some of the texts used each week will include focal verses of that Sunday's worship and sermon theme, so each gathering will be an opportunity to prepare the mind and soul to engage deeply in the worship experience at 10:55. Contact Mike Moose, the facilitator of this group, with any questions or to indicate interest.

This fall our Young Adult Bible Study will be transitioning to Sunday mornings. Please join us as we continue our weekly gatherings, now during Sunday school (9:45-10:45 am). While our time and location may have changed, our structure has not! All young adults (college-aged through 35) are welcome to join us for a time of scripturally-rooted, theologically rich open conversation. We will meet in the basement youth room beginning September 9, and we will continue our discussion of Velvet Elvis by Rob Bell. All are welcome to join, even if you have not yet been—it's easy to jump right in!

This class will be centered around group conversation. Please come with your own thoughts to share and an open mind towards the ideas of others. Contact JD Granade, the facilitator of this group, with any questions or to indicate interest.
