They will tell the story of white Southern Presbyterians and African-American churches and institutions established after the Civil War by Northern Presbyterian missionaries with an eye toward the ways in which present-day renewal might be stirred by insights from the past regarding religious life and practice and the larger social setting. The presentation will take place in the parlor today, from 4-5:30 p.m. Copies of the book will be available for purchase. Light refreshments and a book-signing opportunity will follow the presentation.
