II. Proposal from the Department of Chemistry:

A. ADD, on page 78 of the current catalog,

297 Introduction to Research in Chemistry (1), (2), or (3)
(Prerequisites: CHEM 102 and permission of Department) F, S, SU.
Students are introduced to a variety of techniques of chemical research, including synthesis, spectroscopy, chemical literature searching, and molecular modeling. The focus of the course is on using the tools of chemical research in practical applications to problems rather than on theoretical aspects of the methods. Faculty involved in undergraduate research introduce their research interests and methods and the contributions undergraduates students could make. Students complete both a written report and an oral presentation on a research topic or method of interest. A maximum of three semester hours of credit may be earned toward graduation.

B. ADD, on page 78 of the current catalog,

498 Chemistry Internship (1) or (2) (Prerequisite: CHEM 202 and permission of department) F, S, SU. Students are introduced to independent practical work under the direction of a professional chemist which may include research or other related laboratory service. Students are required to keep a daily journal and complete a final report. A maximum of three semester hours of credit may be earned toward graduation.
